

Editor's Note

The Editorial Board is very much delighted to present the 16th volume of the journal “Nepalese Horticulture”, an official publication of Nepal Horticulture Society (NHS). The Nepal Horticulture Society, one of the oldest professional societies of Nepal, had begun to publish the journal “Nepalese Horticulture” since 1997. The journal welcomes the research articles, short notes and review articles from academia, researchers/scientists, private sectors and farmers. The journal covers all areas of the Horticultural Science. More particularly, this may include but not limited to production technologies, physiology, disease/pest management, genetics, breeding, biotechnology and socioeconomic aspects of horticultural crops.

We accept articles from domestic and international authors both. The current volume of Nepalese Horticulture is the outcome of rigorous research and review works of the authors in the field of Horticulture Science. We anticipate the current volume of the journal will contribute the availability of scientific findings to global scientific communities.

The Editorial Board of the journal takes this opportunity to appreciate invaluable contributions of the authors, tireless efforts of the reviewer and incredible support of executive committee. Nepal Horticulture Society firmly believes on publishing scientific outcomes with high scientific ethics. Our peer review process is very rigid to maintain the highest quality standard of the journal. We anticipate academia, researchers, development workers and private entrepreneurs for their continued support with their authorship enabling us to bring out the present issue. On top of its regular publication in printed form the journal is available on the official website of Nepal Horticulture Society and Nepal Journal Online (NepJol). The journal is indexed on CABI. Therefore, it is anticipated that the readership of the journal would increase significantly.

The Editorial Board thankfully appreciates the cooperation and assistance extended by all the institutions and individuals who have made the publication of this issue possible. The Editorial Board extends acknowledge to all the subscribers, readers and well-wishers of the journal and looks forward to their continued supports in the days to come too. Thank you very much.

The Editorial Committee

16th Volume